

Katherine Perrott

Master of Planning Student
Dalhousie School of Planning

Katherine became interested in planning issues during her undergraduate studies at the University of Guelph where she completed an Honours Bachelor Degree in International Development Studies. Following her graduation she worked in Belize, Central America as a teaching assistant at a university study abroad program for a year and a half. In Belize, the concerns surrounding agriculture, challenges in heritage preservation, and the conflict between communities and tourism operations further solidified her interest in planning. Currently she is focusing on housing issues, suburban development trends, and urban design. She is an active member of student and community organizations and keeps busy gardening, exploring Nova Scotia, and enjoying the local music scene. Katherine works as a research assistant in the School of Planning at Dalhousie and is looking forward to her second year in the program.
